CAPITAL KEPT FLOWING INTO
STAGNANT POOL

Effect of Tax Free
Securities.

BY WILLIAM HARD.

ARTICLE II.
Washington, D. C., Feb. 12.—[Special]—In yesterday's dispatch I pointed out that our thirty-four billion dollars of partially or totally tax exempt securities issued by our states and municipalities, and by our federal government, are the chief reason for the spectacular and tragic failure of our federal surtaxes to bring any strong flow of revenue into the federal treasury from the fortunes of the very rich.

In today's dispatch I also point out that these tax exempt securities are almost entirely responsible for an enormous flow of capital into non-productive public "permanent improvements" and away from the private industrial creative enterprises which are necessary to the enlarged development and enlarged prosperity of the nation.

A Case in Point.

Senator McKinley of Illinois was telling me today a little incident illustrating this point. A friend of his recently was offered an investment in the bonds of an industrial transportation enterprise. This enterprise develops a considerable region of agricultural and manufacturing territory. The friend refused the investment. He went and bought instead a ~~one~~ tax-exempt bond issued by an Illinois town to pay for new pavements.

These pavements were perhaps very desirable. They do not, however, furnish the continuous employment of workmen or the continuous positive development of new wealth that the transportation enterprise would furnish.

How Present Law Acts.

The present situation is as follows: A
The money going into industrial enterprises which create new wealth is taxed. The money going into governmental enterprises which relatively do not create new wealth is tax exempt.
Capital is artificially and excessively tempted into the building of pavements which have to be maintained by future taxes. It is artificially and excessively diverted from the building of railroads which would develop the wealth for the paying of future taxes.

M. Hoover, secretary of commerce,
wrote truly:

"Surplus capital is pouring by the hundreds of millions monthly into tax free securities, and yet our railroads are unable to finance the most modest of construction programs."

Rebonds Against Farmer.

The crippling thus inflicted upon industrial enterprises is inflicted also in a degree upon agricultural enterprises.

The other day a gentleman from Georgia came into the office at Washington of Mr. Charles R. Crisp, commissioner from the Third district of Georgia. This gentleman is engaged in keeping money on agricultural land for its development. He takes the names of farmers and then sells these names to investors who live principally in the north. He has sold such notes to the extent of millions of dollars.
Many of them he has sold to the Marshall Field estate in Chicago.

He told Mr. Crisp that the other day in Chicago he went to see the corporate representative of the Marshall Field estate and offered to him some more farm mortgages.

Very sorry, but we do not care any such notes at present. We already own more than we care to have.

We are gathering in our money as fast as possible and we are putting it into tax exempt bonds of the federal government and of the states and of municipalities."

Flow Steadily Increasing.

The process of the transfer of great sums from productive enterprises to enterprises relatively nonproductive has been going on now for several years with accelerating rapidity. When the great New York banker, Mr. Jacob Kaufman, died and left an estate valued at nearly $35,000,000, it was found that the income taxes on the income of that estate would not amount on the average to more than 1 1/4 per cent per year. The great bulk of the estate was in securities exempt from taxa-tions.

That means that it was in enterprises engaged in developing the resources of the country. It means that they come into enterprises engaged mainly in putting existing wealth into more permanent fixed "permanent improvements."

The Schiff fortune had ceased to be an adventurous fortune and become a stagnant fortune.

NAVAL BASE INDIES VITA SAFETY OF

Gannon Describes of Foreign Islands

BY ARTHUR SEARS H.
Washington, D. C., Feb. 12.—Capt. Sinclair Gannon, the naval division of the command and of the joint armament planning committee, in conference on the strategic situation in the West Indies to states, discussed with me the views of a West Indian naval strategy and the legitimate aim of our naval strategy in the West Indies.

"What constitutes the interests of a West Indian nation or base of importance?" I asked.

"There are three strategical bases which must be met," Capt. Gannon said. "They are location and resources. These cannot at all unlike those affect a commercial undertaking."

"From the American standpoint should be as far forward as other nations can allow. The situation should be such that our scouting will be able to cover our maritime interests in those regions and detect the approach of an enemy having sufficient time to permit fighting force, the battle flag successfully the further progress of the enemy. Location should be such as to be a position of dominance, with our trade routes."

National Fortress Defense

"When it comes to the strength, we must considerive and effective means, having a harbor that can be a West Indian hurricane have a site that affords as much protection as possible."

"A landlocked harbor would be difficult to check the wind, and at the same time excellent points of vantage for fortifications as against high-angle fire ships ten to fifteen miles from the coast."

"To meet the same conditions the sea to the anchorage much to the ability of a force to give the place strength, while at the same time fitting the various types that go to constitute the seaport to going to sea."

"In resources many must be fulfilled or be made available to be accomplished. The anchorage area sufficient in extent to accommodate the units of the fleet, including cargo, repair, hospital ship ports, as well as floating dry docks."

Base for Smaller Vessels

"And there any places suitable for development; if so, compare with positions we lacked."

"There are two," Capt. Gannon said. "They are located northeast of the Mole and Mole at the northwestern corner of the island and within the reef."

"Mole St. Nicholas is in say, capable of extensive It could serve very well cruiser, destroyer and submarine. It is better situated straits of Guantánamo, than that is on the Windward Passage, so convenient as Guantánamo has it as much natural protection."

"Guantánamo bay offers no room to make a large fleet as natural protection, sufficient anchorage, and is an ideal strategic location by its easterly position. It is indicated strategically, however, or St. Thomas."

"It is doubtful however, whether it can be of benefit from the bay entrance for or lease it to the United States for something value which they can profit."

"It is only too apparent America will never consent to the Cuban republic desiring to go to any other nation."

Aim of America's Strategy

"What is the legitimate American naval strategy?" I asked.

The possession by States of the most important ports for our protection, hamper any possible enemy campaign in the Atlantic," Gannon declared. "An wisdom of this lies in

HITS GERMANY HARD

BY HENRY WALES.
(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)

PARIS, Feb. 12.—The action of the allied commission in seving up the entire occupied zone along the Rhine between the Swiss and Dutch frontiers in a tight customs cordon affects directly 40 per cent of the German industry. Indirectly and through holding up the Ruhr fuel, 75 per cent of the German factories are crippled. Only those German plants obtaining Silesian coal can remain in operation when the reserves are exhausted.

Even goods manufactured in the British bridgehead at Cologne are controlled through the recent French seizure of a belt of territory encircling the British east of their zone and separating them from unoccupied Germany.

The French action will prevent the German manufacturers from selling their goods to England, the United States, and other countries and deposing the money in Dutch and Swiss banks, thereby avoiding taxation.

"FIGHT ON," EBERT SAYS

KARLSRUHE, Baden, Feb. 12.—[United News.]—We stand for the most little for exchange that the world hitherto has not seen," Friedrich Ebert, president of Germany, declared in an address to the people of Baden tonight.

Herr Ebert came here to bolster up the morale of the inhabitants of Baden, part of which was occupied recently by the French army.

"In the French invasion of the Ruhr and Baden we see again France's century effort to rule the Rhine," he declared.

"In the Ruhr lie Germany's economic values and possibilities. To surrender the Ruhr would mean to make Germany incapable of living."

People Are United.

President Ebert said the people of the Rhine and Ruhr are unitedly determined to strengthen their resistance and that all peaceful and sensible method of combatting France would be used.

He said it was impossible now to decide whether the world was prepared for intervention, but in any case the world would be "expecting" us to continue our battle.

It is impossible to say, Herr Ebert continued, how the battle would end and what the future development would be, but we cannot submit unless we want to fully surrender our nation."

OPPOSE DICTATORSHIP

BY PAUL WILLIAMS.
(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)

BERLIN, Feb. 12.—The first big anti-German unity rally since the French occupation of the Ruhr galvanized was threatened tonight when the Majority Socialists opposed a special law giving the government martial law powers in dealing with the Ruhr district. The law would have given the government dictatorial powers similar to former President Wilson, and the Social Democrats oppose it as an attack of popular government.

Chancellor Cuno's note to the allies in reply to Premier Poloncarz's order that German cabinet members must not enter newly occupied territory to encourage the population, states that the "German government refuses to accept any modifications of the agreements on its behavior or the attitude of the German ministers." Herr Cuno's document reads more simply and is more direct than my official German note in decades.

The government has decided to ignore Mr. Poloncarz's orders entirely and official circles say that a test will be made by sending a delegation to the Reichstag. If they are arrested it is planned to send cabinet members.

Rubbers Appeal for Food.

The Reichstag received a delegation of Ruhr railroad workers today who appealed for immediate food relief, especially at Aachen and Trier where famine is now threatened.

Germany still shuns many millions of paper marks in today's quote of 45,000,000,000, which it has been issued because of the "crazed" strike of communists among the employees of the government printing plant. These Bolshevik printers told the bosses they wanted one new 50,000 marks note each day, as they were tired of running them off the presses without ever possessing one. They compromised on 20,000 marks daily.

ASK BRITISH ZONE AREA

BY JOHN STEENE.

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)

LONDON, Feb. 12.—[Tribune Radio.]—The British have yet reached a decision on France's latest demand that they surrender a part of the British occupied zone in the Cologne area in order that the French may work their coal trains through it, thus aiding them in their efforts to defeat the Germans in the Ruhr.

The British are anxious to be compelled to reach a decision and if the French force them to it they may hasten the entire withdrawal of their troops from the Rhine.

The French demand raises a question of a revision of the whole treaty of Versailles and the British are not willing to tackle it now, especially as the whole thing is likely to be thrust out in the session of parliament which begins tomorrow.

BRITISH AGREE TO REVISE PACT TO PLEASE TURK

Will Hold Up Economic Clauses in Treaty.

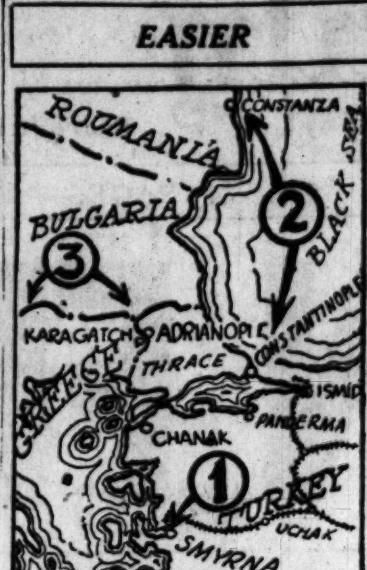

BY HENRY WALES.
(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)

PARIS, Feb. 12.—The British government tonight notified the French government that Lord Curzon had telegraphed instructions to Gen. Harlington to inform Ismet Pasha, when he arrived in Constantinople tomorrow, that Great Britain is ready to sign peace according to the terms of the proposed agreement and is ready to make the concessions which M. Bonnard, the French delegate, offered to Ismet after Lord Curzon had left Lausanne.

The allies are willing to negotiate on the economic clauses in the treaty within six months after the main covenant is signed and no longer insist that the Turks immediately accept these clauses as written into the proposed treaty.

Lord Curzon is willing to accept Ismet's arrangements for judicial advisers in the Turkish court if all jurists are included among those hired by the Angora government. It is expected that Gen. Harlington's explanation will do much to smooth out the imminent signing of peace in Constantinople.

CITY HALL PLANS SMOKE SCREEN HELP LITSINGER

Seek to Put Lundin Taint on Judge Barasa.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Attempts of the remnant of the city hall machine to put over a new form of campaign trickery were predicted yesterday from apparently reliable sources.

Premature publicity may spoil the game, but the reports are that the big idea is to remove the stain of the Lundin-Thompson machine endorsement from Edward R. Litsinger so that he might have a chance of gaining some strength that keeps away as long as the old Lundin-Thompson label is on him.

Litsinger was persuaded to break away from the Brundage-Crowe-Devereux coalition by William H. Wesley, Alexander N. Todd, and Patrick H. Moynihan, a trio who owe their rise in politics to Fred Lundin. The Deeneen group, of which Litsinger formerly was a member, considered itself bound to support Arthur C. Luader, but the Deeneens are said to be convinced that some Deeneen strength will come Litsinger's way if the machine label can be erased at least temporarily.

Brack Barasa as Screen.

For that reason the Wesley-Todd-Moynihan combination and some of their old associates have figured out a neat little plan. It is to hold a meeting in the mayor's office or some other place which will identify the gathering clearly and there with plenty of enthusiasm endorse the candidacy of Municipal Judge Bernard P. Barasa.

They figure, it would be a public announcement that Barasa is the city hall candidate, when as a matter of fact the only machine lieutenants known to be with them are Michael J. Phelan, "Dad" Joe Esposito, and Fred E. Erickson.

Then after this step has been taken the Wesley-Todd-Moynihan outfit is said to feel it can wait for a while and see if some anti-ring support comes to Litsinger before they decide whether they will flop again and endorse him or will support him under cover while supposedly they are with Barasa.

Lueder Gains Daily.

That none of the Lueder supporters was manifested yesterday at a meeting of the Republican campaign committee of 100 in the room rose at the Hotel Morrison. Leaders of all the other candidates, though, the organizations were going ahead with hard work for Lueder without reservation of any kind. Among those who spoke were former Gov. Deeneen, Attorney General Brundage, and State's Attorney Crowe.

"There is no doubt of the result of the primary," said Crowe.

Deeneen also said that the result of the primary will be foreclosed conclusions, and suggested that the three candidates running against Lueder are inspired by the desire for "advertising" and similar motives.

"The fighting is over," said Brundage.

POLITICAL NOTES

The practice of holding daily "open house" during the noon hour will be begun at the Luader headquarters, 8 South LaSalle street, today. The fifteen members of the women's executive committee will act as a reception committee and present visitors to Luader.

Judge and Mrs. Dever are to lead the grand march at the reception and be given the "Forsake" ward Democratic organization at Arcadia hall. It is to be a Valentine party.

Republican forces of the Thirty-fifth, Thirty-sixth, Thirty-seventh, and Thirty-eighth wards will join in a demonstration for Luader at the Bryant hotel, 120 North Dearborn street, tomorrow night. Street parades are to precede the meeting. Attorney General Brundage, State's Attorney Crowe, and other leaders have been invited to speak.

WALLACE CALLS WILSON "A LIAR" IN COUNCIL ROW

Former's Fight on Experts Crux of Argument.

Ald. Thomas O. Wallace, who exposed the enormous payments to city hall experts, passed the lie direct and unequalled yesterday to Ald. Ben' S. Wilson, a Thompson-Lundin follower, who voted five times for the experts as against Ald. Wallace three votes.

Following the argument, which verged on aistic encounter, Ald. Thomas O. Wallace charged that Michael J. [Walsh Photo] Faherty, the man whose O. K. brought five experts $2,742,000 in less than thirteen months, is preparing to circularize the Forty-fourth ward with a malicious lie to the effect that I asked him to make me a Peggy."

How Row Started.

The near battle between Wallace and Wilson took place in the council lounge yesterday morning. Wilson, the man who were present, began his "rants" Wallace, declaring that his insistence on sessions on experting at five council sessions have put Wilson and other Lundin henchmen in a bad hole in their wards."

"Why," said Wilson, "you wanted to be an expert yourself. You tried to get an experting job with the board of local improvements."

"He's a liar," Wallace came back.

Wilson Quotes Faherty.

"Mike Faherty told me you tried to break in," Wilson, who is trying to come back to the city council from the Beverly Hill district, replied hotly. "He's a damn liar." Tell him that for," Wallace replied, as he stepped up to Wilson menacingly. That closed the argument.

Later in the day the campaign which Wallace is waging against Frank A. West, the Faherty candidate against him, was interrupted, momentarily, when a truck owned by the Chicago Overall Dry Cleaners, crashed into an alderman's automobile in front of his office at 846 Center street.

Wallace's left arm was badly cut by glass and he carried it in a sling as he resumed his campaign for reelection last night.

Judge Dever told of the manner in which his candidacy was agreed upon by all the Democratic leaders. "Not a pledge was asked or given," he said.

He took an entirely new angle in reference to the school board scandals. He said that he might discuss that subject in the audience, but, that he felt the should not do so because twenty-four men have been indicted, and they could not get fair trials if the public was highly agitated.

Chicago Getting Bus Habit, Patronage Jump Shows

Bus traffic increased more than 50 per cent during the last year, according to figures made public yesterday by John A. Ritchie, president of the Chicago Motor Bus company. In January, 1922, the company's buses carried 495,471 passengers, and ended with 783,509 in January of this year. It was indicated. Mr. Ritchie said the increased business is due to the fact that Chicago is "getting the bus habit."

HOW "BOA" PEGGY STOPPED DANCE TO BEAT MARINE

DENVIR SLATED FOR COUNTY CIVIL SERVICE POST

Mother Sends Boston Youth Abroad.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 12.—[Special.]—While dancing with Evans Spaulding in the Montmartre cafe in New York, Peggy Joyce suddenly stopped in the middle of a two-step with variations and assaulted the young Bostonian captain of marines.

The information offered by Mrs. Spaulding of Manchester-by-the-Sea, daughter of the former president of the Maine Central railroad.

Peggy, again branded by Mrs. Spaulding as a "beautiful but constrictor," slapped her son again and again and scratched his face. Then, according to Mrs. Spaulding, followed a disgraceful quarrel that almost brought a riot call.

The scene, related by Mrs. Spaulding in the presence of her son in the latter's stateroom aboard the Cunard liner Andania. An atmosphere of mystery hovered over the boat as the mother brought the young Bostonian to the dock in a taxi.

"As far as I know, Miss Hopkins is not aboard," the purser told Mrs. Spaulding. "I know her quite well."

It was only when the last call came that Mrs. Spaulding finally left her son. She whispered to him, "I can't see her." Evans replied, impatiently.

He admitted the assault related by his mother. "She thought I was flirting with another girl," he explained.

"But I don't like all this fuss about Peggy."

TAX BUREAU JUST CAN'T DECIDE ON EXPERT INCOMES

Tax Paid by Every One Else Twice Since Then.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.
Washington, D. C., Feb. 12.—(Special to The Tribune)—The income tax case of the Chicago experts is in the process of being settled.

They collected their aggregate of $2,700 from the city treasury for apportioning in 1920. The income taxes on some incomes were assessable and collectible early in 1921.

They have not paid. In fact, they have not yet been assessed. More than that, it is a matter of public record that the experts themselves say that they have not even made "a proper

Two Long Years Drag By.

Two years have elapsed since the experts showed up, and the bureau of internal revenue has not yet decided whether they are exempt, on the ground that they are city employees.

Some of the money and it is probably owing interest for its possessors.

While the case of the experts is still pending, millions of other individuals have filed their returns and a large percentage of them are now prepared to file a final schedule of income.

In contrast with the claim of the experts of Chicago that they have not filed "a proper return" for 1920, there were 7,259,994 persons who did file returns for that year. These included individuals with an aggregate taxable income of $23,756,515, on which they paid taxes totaling $1,675,052,636.

Of these $52,407 lived in Illinois and paid the government $85,409,203. While these Illinoisans were paying an average of $157 each in taxes, the experts were trying to convince the government that they were immune.

Does the Government care?

The experts, with heavy hearts, do their duty. We here ten days ago to present "new facts" and "new interpretations" of the law. While the bureau is still studying the subject, the Gridiron club gave a musical travesty entitled "Robbing Good" as part of its entertainment at its dinner Saturday night. ## 6 NO'ES, 4 YES'ES, GERRY'S REPLIES IN DIVORCE SUIT

New York, Feb. 12.—Special to The Tribune—Lou Tellegen, only formal statutory questions were put to her by Alvin Untermyer, her lawyer, and she answered all others with "yes" or "no"—and nothing more.

Arthur E. Schwartz, Tellegen's counsel, smiled and said he didn't care to cross-examine, as his client is eager. Miss Farrar got to get the divorce "as fast as possible."

Accompanied by Mr. Untermyer, Miss Farrar entered the office of Thomas H. Mahony, the referee, smiling when she beheld a room filled with reporters and photographers.

Old Civil Law Questions.

When she took her seat, after swearing, her lawyer commenced asking the questions which the civil practice law requires.

Q.—Did you marry Lou Tellegen on Feb. 8, 1914, at 15 West 76th Street, city and state of New York? A.—Yes.

At the time of the marriage and the commencement of the divorce action the prima donna was a resident of this state, she replied to two further questions. There was no issue from the marriage.

Q.—Did you personally verify the complaint in this action, and, before verifying it, did you carefully read it? A.—Yes.

Never Winked at Lou's Acts.

Q.—Was any of the misconduct alleged in the complaint committed by your consent, connivance, privily, or procurement? A.—No.

Q.—Have you ever condoned any of the adulteries alleged in the complaint? A.—No.

Q.—Is there any action for divorce, other than this action, pending between yourself and Mr. Tellegen in the courts of this state? A.—No.

Miss Farrar replied in the negative when asked if five years had elapsed since Tellegen's alleged acts of misconduct, and she made a similar reply when asked if there was any judgment or decree in any court "against you and in favor of the defendant for a divorce on the grounds of adultery."

Next Hearing Tomorrow.

Miss Farrar, who was the only witness, left the room while the lawyers and referee were deciding that the next hearing take place Wednesday morning.

Her long chinchilla-trimmed, broad-tail coat reached the bottom of her dress, and it was only as she raised her right hand, when taking oath, that any part of her dress could be seen. It was brick color. She carried a lace chinchilla bag and an imported beaded bag. Long white kid gloves covered her hands and arms, and a fur-trimmed toque hat rested smartly on her head. A black embroidered veil clung closely to her face. She wore low galoshes.

AGED MAN DIES SUDDENLY.

Why it's called "Complete Dental Treatment"

TWO cleansers, a paste and a liquid, totally unlike in their consistency and cleansing action, are vitally necessary to the health and beauty of the teeth.

Sanitol Tooth Paste thoroughly cleans off ugly film coats, restoring beautiful whiteness to enamel.

Sanitol Liquid Antiseptic purifies tiny unbrushable crevices between teeth where acids develop from food bits that collect and ferment. The use of both hardens the gums, sweetens the breath, invigorates the entire mouth.

THE POLICE AND VICE AND CRIME.

There are citizens who say that Chief Fitzmorris is the best police director the city ever had. There are citizens who say that he permits vice to exist. Eddie Sims, who was president of the Chicago vice commission last year, thoroughly believes in Fitzmorris. Under him the police have reduced the degradations of crime. There has been a steady reduction in burglary and robbery in the last four years. Murder was up a little last year over 1921, which, with 190 murders, was the low mark of four years.

Mr. Sims is a man free from bias in the matter. He is a citizen of character and ability who has given his time to the study and remedy of crime conditions, and his word regarding Fitzmorris carries weight with us. He backs it with statistics. The ordinary citizen knows he has a greater feeling of security from bold men and robbers than he had two or three years ago, when he did not feel safe.

The first duty of the police is to protect life and property. It is also to preserve order and protect public decorum and morality. The protests of citizens attacking the chief now relate to vice. They say that houses of prostitution and vicious resorts are not suppressed and that the traffic is a growing menace to the morals of the city.

We believe it should be understood that the police cannot control the sex impulses of people. That control is in training and in character. The community frowns on irregularity and should oppose promiscuity. It need not expect perfection. The many recent puppy love stories reveal how force and weakness work so frequently to the dismay of the police.

If the principal activities of the police were directed to the restraint of people determined to violate moral laws it would not deter them and what the city would suffer from the released activities of criminals would be tremendous. The life and property of citizens must be protected by the police. People can protect their own morals and for the most part no one else can.

There is, we believe, a great deal of exaggeration in what many people say of vice. The danger to young girls is not in professional prostitution. It is in their daily associations. Where parental influences are bad, weak, or lacking there is danger and the community properly should consider that. We are as thoroughly opposed to the provocative depravity of commercialized, vice and traffic in women as any of the police critics could be. We believe that the vicious resorts, reaching their lowest in the black and tan piggeries, are diseased sores in society, but we do not believe in intemperate assaults upon the police because its control of human nature is not perfect.

An intemperate and disproportionate view of police work may obstruct or injure police efficiency. Men whose word is good and whose information ought to be said that Fitzmorris, working in the worst administration the city has had, has given the city the best protection it has had. That is an achievement which good public policy would recognize and reward. Politics has tried hard to drive the chief out of office and one of Thompson's good acts was his resistance of this influence. Now if law abiding citizens who have been protected try to do what bad politics failed to do it seems to us that they injure themselves.

It has been the experience of cities that sexual irregularity, promiscuity, and prostitution are in ever changing forms. Vice can be denied a recognized district, as has been done and well done in Chicago, but we know that its many doors are scattered and not closed. Chicago has made great progress in public decorum in twenty-five years, as any one who recalls old conditions knows. Prostitution is not a tolerated public scandal as it was. We do not believe in going backward in control and correction, but we do not believe that the discovery that here and there in a great city are houses of ill fame should completely fill the eye of citizens when they consider the service they must have from the police.

ECONOMY AND DEFENSE.

The army appropriation bill will go back to the house with about $29,000,000 more than the budget estimate for rivers and harbors improvement. The senate refused to economize at the expense of pork. The house already has refused to do so, and we must accept the increase. But the senate did not approve of the cuts made in the house affecting the training of civilian soldiers and we hope the moderate but highly important provisions for the organized reserve, national guard and regular army personnel will be accepted in the house. We do not see how that chamber after swallowing $29,000,000 of pork can strain over five millions or so for civilian defense. As a matter of fact the total asked for the military establishment proper is a little less than the budget estimate.

But the crux of the whole question is whether congress proposes to provide adequately for civilian training. Are we to have a military policy in reality or merely one on paper? The national defense act embodies the first consistent comprebensive scheme of defense we have ever had. It was the result of mature study and the experience of the late war. Congress established it in form of law, presumably after due deliberation and with sincerity. Is the present congress to stultify this act by refusing to provide means for realizing it?

The foundation of the American system of defense is the civilian army. Does the present congress share Mr. Bryan's faith in the million armed springers or does it understand that, if citizens are to be asked to fight for their country, the nation owes the duty of preparing them for the service?

Reducing the commissioned and noncommissioned officer personnel, refusing adequate provision for national guard training and reserve training, means that we cannot have "a citizenry trained and accustomed to arms," which Mr. Wilson once declared was the reliance of this republic. It means that we shall have neither a standing army nor an army of citizens. It means, as Washington pointed out, that we shall invite offense by a reputation of weakness and the fact of weakness. It means that if we are attacked we shall be unready to defend and in the attempt sacrifice thousands of lives of unprepared youth and perhaps sustain humiliation and loss.

The notion that we can postpone preparation until war immediately threatens is a dangerous and stupid fallacy. If we are to defend ourselves we must be at all times ready. We do not favor a large standing army. We rely upon our citizens, but we are preparing to murder them if their stomachs are empty. Whoops! Now you chase me for awhile. PADDLED CELL PER.

SONNET A-CROSTICO.

If this poor sonnet should be found some day in a book long forgotten of other men, I wonder if his wit will spell out, then, What secret lies within it, hidden away, Who, in old hours of night, may seek to say Some word concerning us and bring again Our wit within the pale of the world's ken For gain or pride or pleasure—Sir, I pray That if you muse upon it and retrace The long and weary effort of a name To leave some letter on the wall of fame, Oh, muse in such wise as the good God must! Damn not, I pray you for Our Lady's grace, Nor smile, remembering how I am but dust! The King of the Black Isles.

LINES TO R.

Together as we watched the even through, Our passions lulled by nightime's magic moon, You sang the beauty of the waxing moon, But I was blind e've to the soul of you.

You sat enraptured by the silver gleam That 'round us cast its spell; another day In that dim-Past had carried you away, But I sat by and wove the while a dream.

You were enthralled by gyes of Memory; You were so far from me while yet so near; Your thoughts were of some glad gay yesterday, But I dreamed of the days that were to be.

The spell was broken when from out the blue A cloud half hid us with its grim cares, And you were left so cold in loneliness, But I—I had my web of dreams and you!

NO, NO! NOT THAT! NOT THAT!

Dear Dick—I was inspired! I wrote it down, It was a poem—Twinkie, A. T. and I wrote it. Tister! I called up the professors of ancient languages and read it to them. They said it was a 100 to 1 shot for a winner. I let Gene Parsons take a peep at it. He tried for ten minutes to say it, then had to go out and have his tonsils removed. On the strength of all this I bought a Rolls-Royce. The car was delivered Friday morning and so was my copy of the Trib. Some bird in Racine-copped the $100 with a silly little ditty. I am now going to confer with Bill Thompson and persuade him to run for reelection. A. L. C.

MIST ON A CITY STREET AT DUSK.

Mists, drapping mists,
Gray rays ofowering mist
Caught down by the satiny sheen
Of streets,
Like ribbons
Vibrant with the dull joys of humanity . . .

And gleaming lights,
Myriads of lights stinging the gloom
(The red eyes of cigarettes
Is an Eternity of mist—scrapp'd worlds)—.

Sweetheart, to have been kissed,
Just once
By you . . .
Were worth the mist,
The stifling strangling mist
Cloying at my throat
And forcing its caress
Upon my aching breasts!

FRIENDS.

She crawled through the slough grass, a maimed man, crippled by some late hunter's shot-wing-tipped. She couldn't fly, and she died beneath the dry, grassy mat on the frozen lake. My dog stopped short. I could see the tall feathers protruding and I reached for the cripple and carefully carried her to my cabin. The first John had to be removed to save her life. I cared for her and again turned her loose near the willow clump, and I saw her every day at the edge of the cattails, feeding on wild rice. Spring came, and she called to passing migratory birds and told them of her friend. They clinked, alighted, and fed with her and they forgot about the migratory instinct—they stayed—and I didn't shoot. They were her friends, and mine—now. As long as the old ten gauge stays in the cabin corner, just so long will my friends stay with me. MISSISSIPPI MIKE.

HABITANT.

Sometimes the songs I want to sing . . .
Are gossamer threads of Mirth,
Which, strown with the dew of morning, cling
To foibles of dreary Earth.
But fantasy thoughts will disappear
Whenever I would commune,
And the only sound the echoes hear
Is a tinkly little tune.

OLIVE DOUGLAS.

Tis sweet to wander thru new-fallen snow.
Far in the wooded spland miles from town,
With head bent forward and eyes looking down
All unseeing by the surrounding shore—
The site of small birds in the laurel low—
Or partridge whirring by on wings of brown—
Still soaring on the forehead as a crown—
The recollections of the long ago;
And while the feet are moving 'mid the cold,
To pace beneath the olive and the vine;
At every step, to tread thru temples old;
To lie on Capri, basking by the pine,
And see for Naples where the sunset brine
Makes her a pearl within a shell of gold!

WHY IS COAL HIGH PRICED?
(Free translation from Proverbs (Enlightenment; Stevens).

The William C. Altwater company, whose business is that of selling and exporting coal, has declared a stock dividend of 12.50 per cent. The invested capital is increased from $100,000 to $1,400,000.

The company has evidently not been harassed by any losses, nor has it been selling its coal at any low profit. But who has ever heard that there has remained to a minor 1.20 times as much at the end of the year which its invested capital. This is to say, his working capital, produced in that year. Therein, of course, never has anything of the kind. On the contrary, everybody knows that when the year is over the miners are a year older and usually as poor before, sometimes even poorer.

However, the above incident gives a clew to answer correctly the question why coal is so high priced, and it also proves the silliness of the talk about what high wages the miners are receiving for the hard work performed by them.

YES, IT ISN'T IT?

"It's hard," said the sentimental landlady at the dinner table, "to think that this poor little lamb should be destroyed in its youth just to satisfy our appetites."

HABIT AS A CURE.

N. Chicago, on a January day, a crowd estimated at 45,000 gathered in the park for the annual competition in cross-country skiing. A year earlier a crowd estimated at 20,000 journeyed forty miles by train and automobile to witness an out-of-door ski-jumping contest.

Since cold weather set in this winter the street cars have carried this advertisement: "Skating in the clear, frosty air brings health and happiness."

Recently discussing colleges with the mother of a boy away at school this winter for the first time, I was told that some women select certain northern New England colleges for their sons because of the opportunities for winter sports.

I was told that one such college was especially popular because it encourages long hikes and camping in the snow, snowshoeing, and skiing. This was new to me.

BEDSORE REMEDY.

M. T. C. writes: "I note in your column that someone asks for remedy for bedsores. While in the hospital service of the United States I was exposed to many cases of this kind and found that when a careless companion had allowed a bedsores to form on a patient, a thick, creamy mixture of castor oil and zinc oxide ointment gave very satisfactory results. Patients lying in beds impossible to keep free from moisture due to injury to bladder responded very well to applications of this mixture."

DIET: AVOID EXCITEMENT.

Mrs. A. S. B. writes: "I am 71 years old and have a blood pressure of 242."

1. Is this dangerous?

2. What can be done for it?"

REPLY.

1. Yes.
2. Above all, overcome constipation. Eat a vegetarian-fruit-bread-and-cereals diet. Avoid excitement.

DEPENDS ON THE LAW.

M. L. B. writes: "When a family has been in quarantine, who does the furnishing the attending physician or official of the board of health?"

CODEIN IS HARMFUL.

P. A. B. writes: "Does codein constipate, if only one or two tablets are taken at night to produce rest?"

"I contend that any opiate, however small the dose, is not good for one whose habitual tendency is to constipation. I am told that there is no harm in it, but I am not convinced because my observation is to the contrary."

Of course, you are right. Any person who takes codein, or any other form of opium, to make himself sleep, is headed for the scrap heap.

Constipation is only one of the points of interest on the road to "the down and out."

Board United States Shipping Board Steamer President Adams, London, Jan. 20.—It is with a deal of pleasure that I send you the following, because I wish you a knowledge of some travel details by crossing Pacific, Asiatic and the Atlantic eight. "I did not think it possible for my shipping organization to do better from the foundation as has our marine within four years, assuming that the other ships of the board as well as myself as the President am. ## "PORK HUNTERS" OPEN BATTLE ON HARDING'S PLAN

Seek to Circumvent His Opposition.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]
Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—The pork brigade was busy today concocting new schemes to compel President Harding to distribute the $56,000,000 barrel provided in the rivers and harbors section of the army appropriation bill.

They expressed resentment when they heard that President Harding would refuse to spend money for rivers and harbors over and above the $27,000,000 recommended by the budget bureau. They declared they would devise a way to force the President to spend the whole amount.

"Lump Sum" Is Provided.

The rivers and harbors section provides a "lump sum" appropriation of $56,000,000 to be expended under the direction and supervision of the secretary of war and the army engineers. No mention is made in the measure of specific projects, but there is an understanding that the $56,000,000 will be distributed in accordance with the usual recommendations of the army engineers, which showed how this amount could be spent.

The administration, it is understood, interprets the measure as granting it discretionary powers under which it could withhold or distribute the $56,000,000 as it sees fit. The pork brigade is planning to insert in the army bill additional provisions removing the discretionary power of the administration and designating the projects on which the money is to be spent.

Protest Made by Caraway.

"The President is the chief executive and it is his duty to see that the law is enforced," Senator Caraway [Dem., Ark.] said. "If the President should issue an executive order forbidding the officers of the government to obey the law it certainly will be an unfortunate circumstance."

"Congress saw fit to vote $56,000,000 for rivers and harbors after the President had made his views known. Every senator and representative knew that the President was opposed to the appropriation. Therefore there is no excuse for the President to refuse to obey the law on the ground that Congress did not realize what it was doing."

"The situation which will develop if the President makes good that threat will be one he certainly will regret as much as any one else. The time has not yet come when all the people are going tamely to submit to the dominancy of the chief executive and I hope the President's advisers will take serious counsel before ignoring the expressed will of congress."

ing in large numbers of other fortunes. The spirit of adventurousness and initiative in private business is being artificially widely checked.

Leads to Governmental Extravagance.

Simultaneously—in public business—along with the "easy money" now so readily raised by municipalities and by other governmental bodies through the sale of tax exempt bonds—the spirit of lavish governmental expenditure is being artificially widely awakened.

In the year 1913 the total outstanding bonded indebtedness of all states and municipalities—including counties and cities and drainage districts and school districts and other political subdivisions within the state—was less than four billion dollars. By the year 1919 this sum had grown to $6,000,000,000. By the end of the year 1922 it had grown to $10,000,000,000.

This is a sum not much smaller than the total debt owed to us out of the late war by the allied governments of Europe. The interest on it is approximately $450,000,000 a year. This interest approximately equals the total

Pyorrhea Attacks FOUR Out of FIVE

Be on your guard when gums bleed

Look to your teeth, for they are priceless. Be especially careful when your gums bleed, for Pyorrhea, destroyer of teeth and health, is on the way. Four persons out of every five past forty, and thousands younger, are subject to it. The odds are heavy against you.

First, go to your dentist for tooth and gum inspection. Then, brush your teeth with Forhan's For the Gums. If used consistently and used in time, this dentifrice will prevent Pyorrhea or check its progress.

Forhan's For the Gums is the formula of R. J. Forhan, D.D.S. Used as a dentifrice, it will keep your teeth white and clean and your gums firm and healthy. It is pleasant to the taste. At all druggists, 35c and 60c in tubes.

cost to us of maintaining the "veterans' bureau" of the federal government for the total care of all soldiers of the late war.

Mellon Summarizes Situation.

The resulting situation in general has been compactly and completely expressed and exposed by Mr. Mellon, secretary of the treasury, in his recent testimony before the ways and means committee of the house. The representative of the house, however, states three tremendous facts regarding tax exempt securities.

He said: "These securities issued by the nation and the states and municipalities are drying up the sources of industrial capital."

He said: "These securities are placing a premium on extravagance in governmental expenditures."

He said: "These securities are enabling a large percentage of the people who are most able to pay taxes to escape all tax burdens, and they are obliging the balance of the population to pay double taxes in order to raise the revenue needed by the government."

He accordingly promoted the constitutional amendment which now lies in the judiciary committee of the senate and the effect of which will be described in succeeding dispatches.

[Another dispatch by Mr. Hard on the subject of tax exempt securities will be printed tomorrow.]

RODOLF AND HIS BRIDE HERE, LOCK SELVES ON TRAIN

Rodolf Valentine and his bride, Winifred Hudnut, crept quietly into Chicago yesterday and out again on their way to St. Louis without attracting the attention of any one save a few newspaper men. So anxious were they to avoid publicity that they locked themselves in their room on the train and refused to heed calls or knockings on the door.

Kaskaskia and Cahokia were the first permanent settlements in Illinois. Which was first is in dispute, as they were founded within a few weeks of each other in 1700, by followers of Jesuits, mostly Indians from the Starved Rock Settlement. Then came white traders, who married, and wigwams changed to French Canadian cottages. Illinois was founded.

Settlers of these two towns, building homes, making permanent investments, though small, were the founders of a great State. Illinois has grown great through the sacrifices of men and women who saved and built homes. Each generation has been greater because of the savings and investments of home building people.

Individuals succeed in the same hard way. Your future is worth sacrificing for. It's a lot easier for you to save today on your salary than it was for our early settlers. Follow their example. Use Our Bank.

CONNOR GIVES UP; WAS SOUGHT FOR UNIQUE TRIANGLE

Rich Veteran Said to Have Kept Two Families.

BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.
Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 12.—[Special.]—A "love bungalow" containing a smiling mother and three children must be explained away tomorrow by Maj. Robert W. Connor, wealthy Marshallfield lumberman, when he appears before Judge George Page in the District court. The major, 22d division war veteran and thrice former mayor of Marshallfield, is charged with maintaining a household here as "Robert H. Brown," while still the nominal head of a family in his home town.

He surprised the sheriff's office, where deputies were still on the hunt for him, by appearing today and surrendering himself on $1,000 bond.

A few hours before, Miss Bertha Gurtler, the alleged "Mrs. Brown," had appeared before Judge Page to deny the charge and obtain a continuance of her arraignment until March 5.

Known as Loving Father.

In Marshallfield, Maj. Connor was president of the R. W. Connor lumber company. He is brother-in-law of former Lieut. Gov. W. D. Turner. He was known throughout the community for the affection he lavished on his wife and two children, a girl of 18 and a boy of 10.

But this quiet family life, which Marshfield knows, has only been one side of the major's career, according to the charges made to the Circuit Attorney, George A. Shughnessy.

Nine years ago, the charges state, the wealthy lumberman met a Miss Gurtler, a stenographer, in Wisconsin Rapids. A few months later the typist disappeared, and shortly after, the prosecution alleges, Robert A., first of the children, was born. The woman went to Texas with his parents in 1917, and died overseas, where he distinguished himself. He returned to America and not only to Marshallfield, but to Milwaukee, where he established the "love bungalow" in Shorewood. Thus read the charges.

Recognized by Neighbor.

Everything went well until Mrs. Lydia Ritt, Marshallfield club woman and church leader, moved to Milwaukee. She is said to have recognized in "Brown" her neighbor in Marshallfield, and to have told the Milwaukee Federation of Church Women, "The denunciation followed."

"There is many a wealthy man in Marshallfield doing the same thing," Mrs. Ritt claims.

"Mrs. Brown," red-haired, smiling, says she has nothing to say.

"Nothing to it," Maj. Connor says. "It's all a trumped up charge," says Mrs. Connor in Marshallfield.

FOES OF SUBSIDY START CAMPAIGN TO DETOUR BILL

Test May Come Today on Norris Motion.

BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.
Washington, D. C., Feb. 12.—[Special.]—Opponents of the ship subsidy bill made their first move today toward its displacement in the senate. Senator Norris [Rep., Neb.] moved that the senate proceed to the consideration of the resolution proposing a constitutional amendment abolishing the electoral college and advancing the date on which members of congress shall assume their duties following their election.

On account of Lincoln's birthday, no attempt was made to bring the Norris motion to a vote. It is expected that Senator Jones [Rep., Wash.], in charge of the subsidy bill, will move tomorrow to table the Norris motion, and that the first test of strength will take place.

Likely to Be Tabled.

The expectation is that the Norris motion will be tabled by the opponents of subsidy expect to offer similar motions to take up other pending legislation. A motion to take up the truth-in-fabric bill is scheduled to be presented about Wednesday.

Senator Jones outlined to the senate a program under which he thought it would be possible to pass the administration's debt bill without delay without interfering with the ship subsidy bill. He said that he would permit an adjournment instead of a recess in order that there may be a morning period for consideration of the debt bill. Senate leaders seem to think that the debt bill can be passed after four or five hours' debate. There are a number of senators, however, who intend to occupy considerable time in criticizing the bill. These include Senator Borah [Rep., Idaho] and Senator Reed [Dem., Mo.]

Senator Jones Blocked.

Senator Jones failed to obtain a unanimous consent agreement for the limitation of debate on the ship subsidy bill when Senator Williams [Dem., Miss.] objected.

CULLERTON TOLD FIRE PENSIONERS SEEK JOBS BACK

"If one of these men go back there will be more crutches in the fire department than there are in the county hospital."

Thus spoke Fire Commissioner John F. Cullerton yesterday when word reached him that the twenty-eight veterans members of the department, as incapacitated as Mr. Cullerton's suggestion, were "mustering their drags" for a drive on the commissioner and Fire Chief Seyerlich, beginning today.

"If one of them goes back they all go back," said Mr. Cullerton, and others have been pensioned at my request, and if this retirement order is not permitted to stand I'll bring them all back to the department."

Life is Never Humdrum, If-

"YOU must get pretty tired of the kind of life you lead," said a workman one morning to A. B. Farquhar, who is eighty-four years old. "Just the same old thing every day. Going to your plant every morning at seven, rain or shine. Doesn't it get monotonous?" "No," Mr. Farquhar answered. "It doesn't. It gets to be more fun every day."

Life is never humdrum if your mind can reach out and find its own relation to the problems of the world around you. There are millions of people in America who, like Mr. Farquhar, enter eagerly into the life beyond their own picket fences. They are not cynical about politics, not doleful about prohibition, not despondent over taxes, because they are alive—and interested. They get more out of life because they give most to it.

They want economic, political and social affairs brought into focus. Their ideas make public opinion. For them Collier's is edited. Let us see what they will read this week:

A. B. FARQUHAR, who knew Lincoln, tells young people how to live so that life will never lose its zest. Thrills and aspirations are still new to him—and to everyone who can love life as he does.

HUNDREDS of letters from Collier's readers have gone into the making of William G. Shepherd's article on inheritance. You can see in those he quotes the kind of private thinking that multiplies itself into the greatest power in the world—public opinion.

EVEN SPORTS can be humdrum to the humdrum player. For the others, Walter Camp says that Coué's famous formula has its application to games. He tells some amazing things that happened when famous athletes used their imaginations.

FICTION must have the flavor of life if it is to be interesting. "The Swamp Angel," Richard Connell's first novel, has it. Donn Lane is a real boy; Ellie Byrne is a real girl. If you like people you can know well, you will like "The Swamp Angel."

JIM McGEE and his wife came to New York. They saw but did not conquer. They went back to Williamsburg, and the manner of their coming and going, as told by Harold H. Armstrong, will warm the hearts of those of us who know and love the small town.

Collier's serves those who do their own thinking by telling them not what to think, but what to think about. In more than a million homes every week these men and women who lead interesting and interested lives welcome Collier's because it helps them to a fresh perspective on the great affairs and events about them. And their minds are alert and open to receive your message through Collier's advertising pages.

"REDS" FRAMED IN DETECTIVES' PLOTS, CHARGE

Burns and Thiel Men Are Accused by Spy.

Armour; Judge Oscar Hebel, and various newspapers and magazines.

That Attorney Comerford offered another Thiel operative $25,000 if he would testify for the state in the Red cases.

It was when O. L. Smith, assistant attorney general of Michigan, and Charles Gores, prosecutor of Berrien county, protested against the irrelevancy of the evidence of the Bridgeman raid that Attorney Walsh outlined what connection he hoped to show between Balanow's story and the arrests in Michigan.

He declared the defense proposed to show that the raid was simply a "part of a plot engineered by Meyers to destroy C. E. Ruthenberg, executive secretary of the Communist Labor party, William Z. Foster, secretary and treasurer of the Trade Union Educational League, and Caleb Harrison," all three of whom are defendants in the Michigan cases.

"We propose to show," he said, "that anything that was done over there in Michigan which was against the law, was done by persons like Mr. Ballin here—by agents of the department of justice or by operatives for private detective agencies."

Made Communist Speech.

Balanow started the hearing, which was held in the office of Attorney William A. Cunnane, Socialist candidate for mayor, in the Reaper block, by describing how he had first been employed by Flannigan in 1917 to join the claim-makers' union in a window smashing crusade, and incite the strikers to violence. He said he met Charles Winfield, business agent of the union, in Blue Island, and induced him to break windows, and said Winfield later told him of a number of windows being broken. Altogether, the witness said, between 200 and 300 cigar store windows were broken in various parts of Chicago. Later he learned that Winfield was another Thiel operative working under cover.

One occasion Flannigan gave me a type written speech which I delivered before the Young People's Socialist League," Balanow said, "urging them to break away from the Socialist party and to join the Communist party. That was in December, 1919, just before the Red raids in Chicago. Some twelve or fifteen young men, mostly workers ranging from 15 to 19 years of age were present, and one of the young men made a speech opposing me and the league refused to follow my advice."

Organized Belt Workers.

He was next ordered to join the Workers' International Industrial union, of which Caleb Harrison of Grand Rapids, one of the Michigan defendants, was organizer. His job was to organize the beltmakers. He said he got a job in a belt factory, went among the workers telling them what "a hell of a job it was" engaged speakers, and organized meetings.

"Flannigan told me that if we could get him organized," he said, "he could go to the belt manufacturers, show them that the Thiel agency had a man under cover in the organization, and obtain money from them for getting evidence."

Knights of the Red Star Deal.

Balanow said Cooney gave him manifestos supposed to have been issued by the Knights of the Red Star, a non-existent organization, and showed him reports on the many organizations throughout the country purporting to have been written by Cooney. It was really the report of a meeting of the I. W. W. textile workers, Balanow said. He also produced a membership list of the Knights of the Red Star, which he said was signed by Cooney.

"We can get the bankers and the packers to raise funds to investigate this," Cooney told me. "You know there is no such organization and I know it, but we'll get rich investigating it and you'll get your pay raised."

Coming down to the Red raids here on New Year's day, 1920, Balanow said he had been engaged by Cooney to work for him, and that they were to be pulled in at 4 p.m. He was in the I. W. W. meeting place at 119 South Throop street, he said, when the raids were made. The police, he said, smashed the desks, pictures of George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, and Bill Haywood, and tore up a lot of literature and blamed it on the Reds. He was taken to the state's attorney's office, he said, and was given a chance to defend himself. Cooney and Assistant State's Attorney Berger, who urged him to turn state's evidence and serve his sentence. He would be well paid, they promised him.

Went Into Hiding.

He refused and went into hiding in Wisconsin. Upon his return, he said, State's Attorney Hoyne gave him a recommendation through which he obtained a job.

WHAT BURNS SAYS

New York, Feb. 12.—[Special.]—W. Sherman Burns, head of the Burns detective agency, tonight characterized the storm that followed the stand by Albert Ballin, alias Ballin, as a "state of lies" and said that the agency found that the testimony warranted prosecution. It would bring a charge of perjury against the former agent.

"With Burns," the witness replied:

"I am Raymond Burns Flannigan wanted me to go to work for him again," he said, "and he said it was all right, for me to go ahead and work for the Thiel people and turn their reports over to him. 'Go ahead and get all you can on Flannigan, so we can take some of his business away from him,' he told me. He was getting $4 a day from Burns and $150 a month from Thiel."

What did you have that contradicted him?" asked Assistant Attorney General Smith.

"With Burns," the witness replied:

"I am Raymond Burns."

tained a job in the military intelligence service at Camp Grant, Ill., but said the man was discharged "because we found when we checked him up that he was a faker" and had invented a number of stories about radical meetings and radical activities which were never true.

"One of the things which got him into trouble with us," Mr. Burns said, "was his report about 'The Knights of the Red Star,' which is mentioned in the report from Chicago."

For about two weeks in 1920 he was suspended. Then he claimed we owed him some money. We said we did not pay for false reports."

It was while he was working for the Thiel agency that he was employed.

"We can get the bankers and the packers to raise funds to investigate this," Cooney told me. "You know there is no such organization and I know it, but we'll get rich investigating it and you'll get your pay raised."

Coming down to the Red raids here on New Year's day, 1920, Balanow said he had been engaged by Cooney to work for him, and that they were to be pulled in at 4 p.m. He was in the I. W. W. meeting place at 119 South Throop street, he said, when the raids were made. The police, he said, smashed the desks, pictures of George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, and Bill Haywood, and tore up a lot of literature and blamed it on the Reds. He was taken to the state's attorney's office, he said, and was given a chance to defend himself. Cooney and Assistant State's Attorney Berger, who urged him to turn state's evidence and serve his sentence. He would be well paid, they promised him.

Employed "to Incite Strikers."

Balanow started the hearing, which was held in the office of Attorney William A. Cunnane, Socialist candidate for mayor, in the Reaper block, by describing how he had first been employed by Flannigan in 1917 to join the claim-makers' union in a window smashing crusade, and incite the strikers to violence. He said he met Charles Winfield, business agent of the union, in Blue Island, and induced him to break windows, and said Winfield later told him of a number of windows being broken. Altogether, the witness said, between 200 and 300 cigar store windows were broken in various parts of Chicago. Later he learned that Winfield was another Thiel operative working under cover.

Made Communist Speech.

"On one occasion Flannigan gave me a type written speech which I delivered before the Young People's Socialist League," Balanow said, "urging them to break away from the Socialist party and to join the Communist party. That was in December, 1919, just before the Red raids in Chicago. Some twelve or fifteen young men, mostly workers ranging from 15 to 19 years of age were present, and one of the young men made a speech opposing me and the league refused to follow my advice."

Organized Belt Workers.

He was next ordered to join the Workers' International Industrial union, of which Caleb Harrison of Grand Rapids, one of the Michigan defendants, was organizer. His job was to organize the beltmakers. He said he got a job in a belt factory, went among the workers telling them what "a hell of a job it was" en-

DENTISTS all over the country are recommending Revelation to their patients. These men have found, after a thorough trial, that Revelation lives up to every claim we make for it. They have found that Revelation not only cleans the teeth, removes stains, the accumulation of tartar, prevents decay, but it relieves sensitive and bleeding gums and leaves them firm and healthy. And so more than 10,000 of these "men who know" have written us unsolicited testimonials, a few of which we are reprinting in these advertisements. We want you to try Revelation, for we are sure you will be more than satisfied with the good results it shows.

Dear Sirs: I recommend Revelation for many patients, especially where the tissues have receded and the gingival portion of the tooth has become very sensitive. I recommend it because of the relief it has given me. I have found nothing else that is so positive and at the same time so well received by the investing tissues.

Yours truly,

ADVERTISING COLORED FOLKS FROM DIXIE ARE TREKKING NORTH

Better Pay Is Magnet for South's Workers.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 11.—(Special)—
A Negro migration to the north is in full swing. All the "gateaway" cities in the south report the movement and every southern state appears to be experiencing it. In some sections, most recently hit by the boll weevil, it almost approaches in extent the exodus of colored labor during the war.
In others it is small but steady. Last half year it has been quite steady.

Reports gathered at first hand on this from state officials in the Carolinas, Georgia, Mississippi, Alabama, Florida, Tennessee, and Kentucky, indicate that since the shortage of common labor appeared in the northern industrial centers last spring, say, in June, between 100,000 and 150,000
Negro workers have moved to the north. This appears to be a conservative estimate; some place the figures considerably higher.

Agents Round Up Workers.
Large industries which have found it difficult to get enough unskilled labor—sometimes because of the low wage offered—have had agents in the south for months rounding up workers. The iron and steel industry is reported among the most active in this respect. The railroads, too, have been recruiting large numbers for maintenance of way operations.

The Negro labor is not going to any one particular point in the north, but appears to be fairly well diffused among the industrial states. Large numbers heading north through Atlanta, Memphis, Louisville, and other points are said to be bound for the steel mills in the Chicago-Columbus area, for the rubber factory towns in Ohio, the steel centers in Pittsburgh and Ohio, which are moving in large groups into the automobile cities of Michigan. From the Carolinas there is a steady colored exodus into the mill cities of New England and the east. Many are Negroes who went north during the war to work in munition and food products plants and elsewhere, but who came back when the business slump set in.

Attracted by Higher Wages.

During the six or eight months since a shortage of common labor has been experienced in some basic industries, they are flocking north again attracted by the higher wages.

Employing interests in the south regard the migration with mixed feelings.
In the textile regions many manufacturers say it is a serious problem because they depend largely on cheap labor in the cotton fields. Among the cotton raisers, it is "viewed with alarm."
Others, however, take the opposite view.
They say it is one answer to the campaign which some large employing groups in the north have been pushing for months to let down the immigration bars in order to let in cheap unskilled labor from the south.
They point out that the south has a vast army of cheap labor living under poverty ridden conditions and that it drains off some of the surplusage into the northern industrial centers which will be of benefit to both those who move and those who remain.

May Give North Race Problem.

True, it may tend to give the North more of a share in the race problem,
but in looking for a labor supply,
many down here maintain it would be better for the big industries to consider the cheap Negro labor instead of cheap European labor.

But in the mineral regions of the south, is the potential supply of white labor, of Anglo Saxon stock, which now is living largely in a condition of poverty. It is this supply on which the textile industries of the south have been built-up. They are moving so fast that there are 16, 000,000 spindles in the south, as against
2,000,000 in the rest of the country.
And still in the mountainous regions of the south, is a white population of at least 2,000,000 to 3,000,000, a large part of which might be drawn upon as a labor supply—and experience is that despite the illiteracy rate, which is ridiculous, it is easily transformed into unskilled labor. It is readily adaptable to mill and factory work.

Louisville Sends 1,000.

At Louisville, the state employment alone has sent since May more than 1,000 Negroes west to a plant in Ohio to work as common labor for the most part in the steel mills.
"My idea is that the Negro population ought to be drawn upon instead of letting down the immigration bars," said Pat Fiburn, supervisor of labor of Kentucky, the other day. "They're American, aren't they, and any distinguished common labor which helps them surely ought to help the country as a whole." It's infinitely better than hiring in cheap labor from Europe and elsewhere.

"Supposing it does lessen the supply and increases the pay in the cotton fields what of it? My theory is that it would be a good thing all around if common labor were able to get more probable pay."

ITCHING GONE, SKIN ALL WELL— POSLAM DID IT

Oh, man, "what a grand and glorious feeling!" Itching all gone, burning stopped, no more scratching and that unsightly eruption almost gone already.
THAT'S what Poslam does.
There's nothing like it for skin trouble.

Think what it would mean to YOU to know the wonderful soothing, cooling Poslam comfort.
Why don't you get a 50c
box and begin treatment tonight? You can tell by its very smooth, soft texture. It gives relief and almost overnight the eruption begins to disappear.

Poslam is safe, non-toxic.
It is a true emollient. For trial sample send to POSLAM, 43 W. 47th St.,
New York. Poslam soon keeps skins healthy and complexion clear.

EMPLOYERS BAND TO FIGHT 8 HOUR DAY FOR WOMEN

Opposition to Be Made at Hearing on Bill.

The Illinois Manufacturers' association is sending out a letter to its members today emphasizing and detailing its previously announced opposition to the women's eight-hour bill which is pending in the legislature. A public hearing on this bill will be held Feb.
26 at 10 a.m. in Springfield, before the joint legislative committee. Employers opposed to the bill have been asked to meet at the Leland hotel, Springfield, on the morning of Feb. 26 to present a program.

Replies of Illinois manufacturers on a questionnaire sent out by the association on Jan. 24 are listed in the new "Three and nine-tenths per cent of the replies stated that they were not opposed to the bill.

"Ninety-six and one-tenth per cent stated that they were opposed to the bill."

Unaware of Abuses.
The association circular, which is signed by John M. Glenn, secretary, reads further:

"We do not know of any member of the association that employs women the full 40 hours permitted under the law."

"We do not know of a single solitary instance in Illinois where a girl is overworked in a factory."

"We do not know of a single case in Illinois where a woman or a girl is injured or dies in a factory. If there were any such the state factory inspector would take action."

"We have not been able to learn of any movement among working women in Illinois for an eight hour day. [This was the first bill introduced in the legislature by Mrs. Little Holmes O'Neill, who stated that it was proposed to limit the regular working day to eight hours.]

"We have not been able to find any discontented women among factory employees in Illinois. They are generally a happy, contented, attractive appearing, well dressed class of women."

Arguments Against Bill.

Letters from employers who object to the bill are printed in the circular,
and the arguments against the bill
are summed up as follows:

"It would really mean a forty-four hour week, and men prefer to have forty-eight hours."

"Manufacturers would be subjected to the competition of other states where there is no eight hour law for women."

"It would reduce the pay of women workers."

"If the eight hour law became effective, it would mean a survival of the fittest."

attract women workers and thousands would be thrown out of employment.

"There is no real shortage of labor which would be increased by reduction in the hours of work."

"It is class legislation and opposed to the general welfare."

"It would interfere with seasonal industry, such as the canning of fruit and vegetables."

"It would increase the cost of living."

SYNOPSIS.
John Corbyne is devoted to Sylvia, his wife, and their young son. He is one of Katherine's great financiers, and just after his appointment to the cabinet his first wife, Katherine, whom he had divorced because of her unfaithfulness, threatens to reopen their old case on a technicality unless he returns to live with her and her husband. He goes back to her in order to avoid staining Sylvia's honor and his son's name, and, to either drive back to the blow by arousing her pride, pretends he has been lured away by the other woman. She disappears.

Carfax, Sylvia's guardian, announces that Corbyne is ill. After a month Corbyne's absence creates a slight panic in the financial world. There is a rum on an important bank, and of course John goes to the scene. He has changed his appearance slightly, but Carfax sees and accosts him and denies that he is Corbyne. Carfax apologizes and speaks to him as a patriot to take Corbyne's place to avert a great financial crisis. Corbyne consents. Sylvia agrees to the arrangement and, although she knows he is her husband, she will not permit him to explain.

Katherine, who evidently is being coached in her part, objects to his double role of Corbyne in town and Briarly at Ealing, and renewes her threats. John insists on carrying out his agreement with Sylvia and Carfax. He discovers that Desile, head of the woolen industry and a power politics, is his chief enemy and that it is he who has incited Katherine to take action against him. A public scandal is threatened, but John and Sylvia agree to face it rather than have her resign before his work is finished. Sylvia herself sets for herself the task of unravelling the mystery surrounding John's actions. Desile, the detective, and Bayliss, the solicitor, help her.

BLENKIRION AGREES TO AID SYLVIA.

"There must be some way of using such a valuable clew as a man's handwriting," she thought. "The banks—"

"Technically speaking, it's the first time in my life I've made any real use of the banks," returned Blenkiron. "I admit it is you who started it, Mrs. Corbyne."

The banks have brought us all along the course so far, and I wish we could stick to the banks."

"Can't we?"
"I don't think they will help us any further. What you require of them now is active cooperation. It's dead certain they'd refuse it."

Sylvia gazed out into the thronged streets.

"A P.D. being even a bank clerk in the kingdom were provided with a photograph of that signature," she suggested, "and told to report the moment he encountered it again."

Blenkiron smiled wryly. "If we could suppose that, we could quite reasonably suppose also that there is a would-be found for us within a week or so—unless he's too hard up to have a banking account, which seems unlikely. But it would be folly to propose such a course to even the most sympathetic bank manager."

"How many can you have ten thousand reproductions of that signature ready?" interrupted Sylvia.

Rosen stared. "By Saturday—no, better say Monday," he replied.

"I'll come round to your office early on Monday morning, then," said Sylvia. "You'll have them ready, won't you? Here we are at your photographer's, Mr. Rosen. Good-by."

Rosen began a question, laughed, and took his leave. The car sped on, leaving the two women alone. The tension in her corner until she became aware that Blenkiron was holding open the door for her to descend, while beyond him Woodhams hovered in the hall. She was home again. She ran up the steps and hurried into the house.

"Is Miss Fellowes in, Woodhams?"

"I believe not, madam."

Sylvia looked into the secretary's room. It was empty. She wrote a hasty note—"Please let me know as soon as you can what happened in the house this afternoon—S. C." and left it on the writing table. Then she went upstairs.

"Stamford, I think I'd like to go to sleep. Don't wake me till a note comes up from Miss Fellowes."

"Yes, madam."

She slept dreamlessly, her cheek on her hand, breathing lightly as a child, so that Stamford, entering with Miss Fellowes' note, hesitated whether to obey her wish or whether to steal away again. Sylvia solved the problem by stirring and finally sitting up.

"At the note! Thank you." She tore it open and read:

"The bill has passed the second reading—F."

In his solemn, half lit room in the heart of the city, Gregory Blenkiron sat and faced Monday morning. He indulged in no kind of holiday on Sunday, holding fast to it laziness to work less than seven days a week, yet the Mondasay feeling recurred with weekly acerbity. His staff knew it to their cost.

"Mr. Corbyne would be glad if you could spare her a few minutes, sir," wrote a nervous secretary, entering, as it were, on tip-toe.

Blenkiron snorted his surprise.

"Mr. Corbyne?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, I'm—" He paused, contemplating the unusualness of the request. Then, with a shout. "Why the devil don't you show her up?"

"I—yes, sir."

Sylvia, when presently she came stepping lightly over the thick carpets, at the Mondasay feeling invisible. She was as beautiful as she was compellingly alive. She looked quite invisible.

"I have come to you to interest you to ask your assistance, Mrs. Blenkiron," she began. "To save your time, may I begin by assuring that you are aware of his impending action against a paper called the 'Plain Man'?"

"It has been my business to take cognizance of that fact, Mrs. Corbyne," said Blenkiron warily. Then he brightened. "So you are helping him in the matter, eh? That should be sufficient guarantee that there's no truth in the allegation. The moral effect on a jury of your presence should be considerable."

He leaned towards her and scowled. It was a trick of his when he had an important question to ask.

"When the case comes into court and they produce their dates, can you prove that the dates they give your husband was with you?"

"Eh? Why not?"

"I can't prove he was not at that maisonette in Ealing because he was there," replied Sylvia.

Blenkiron looked at her and then averted his eyes.

"He went to that maisonette to bargain with the woman," she said slyly. "I'll give you all the details if you want them, Mr. Blenkiron—if it is impossible that is to say, for you to accept my assurance that the whole affair is an elaborate political blackmail. I don't mean merely the publication is that concern—I mean that the facts have been—staged—to destroy my husband's career."

"You needn't bother to prove that," said Blenkiron gruffly. "I told your husband that myself. Don't see how we can do anything." He added a bark, "What can we do?"

Sylvia did not mind being barked at.

"The whole conspiracy centers in the person of one man," said Sylvia.

"If we can lay our hands on that man my husband is safe." She opened her hand and took out a photograph. "That is the picture of the man in question. Whether it is still his name or not I do not know."

"The signature conveys nothing to my mind," he growled.

"In my car outside. Mr. Blenkiron are ten thousand reproductions of that signature. How many branches of banks throughout the country do you control?"

"What's that? I don't know. Not as many as ten thousand."

"There will be enough of these slips for you to send at least one to every branch you control and order the manager and clerks to look out for that signature," said Sylvia.

Blenkiron glared.

"If you were a man, Mrs. Corbyne, I would say that that was a personal favor of you," replied Sylvia. "That is where he is so foolish, is he not?"

He simply can't think of himself as a national asset," continued Sylvia.

"You can see even more clearly than I that this personal trouble of his is a personal trouble at all. It's a national trouble. That is why I have the smallest hesitation in asking you to help. It will take a detective an infinite time to find this man. It is possible that you might find him in a single day."

There was an agonizing space during which Blenkiron was silent. He was frowning, and suddenly chuckled.

THE GUMPS—SKINK VS. GUMP POSTPONED

City Pauses in Daily Grind to Honor Lincoln

Veterans Who Answered His Call Pay Tribute.

Father Dearborn bowed his head yesterday in commemoration of Abraham Lincoln's 114th birthday anniversary.

Meetings, luncheons, banquets, and memorial services were held in every part of the city. The public schools were closed. Banking institutions, business trade, stock exchange, branches of the municipal government, courts and many business houses declared a holiday.

It was a great day for veterans of the civil war. Four score of men who answered Lincoln's call for volunteers assembled in the public library, where the Grand Army of the Republic and Hall Memorial association held a celebration. The assembly was addressed by Addison G. Proctor of Michigan and the Rev. William E. Condon of Our Father's Home Lincoln. Mr. Proctor was a delegate to the famous "Wigwam" convention, which nominated Lincoln for the presidency in 1860 in Chicago.

"Well, gentlemen," said Mr. Proctor, "the thing that actually caused us to place a wreath on the bust in the morning was a demand made by some late anti-slavery delegates. I tried it on myself and found it to be a source of pain. Coué doesn't profess to cure real invalids, so for serious illnesses I would suggest a physician.

Mrs. Jessie West, 3450 West Harrison street, widow, wife—she hasn't considered it very deeply, but I had to answer right off the bat. I'd say it should be a definite factory for imaginary invalids. Coué doesn't profess to cure real invalids, so for serious illnesses I would suggest a physician.

Oscar A. Grieb, 3856 Lake Park avenue, salesman—Suffering from ailment brought on by the war, I took up the theory later—autosuggestion. I tried it on myself and found it to be a source of new life. People who ridicule the theory do not understand or they don't apply it thoroughly.

Three thousand Boy Scouts assembled in Moody tabernacle at Clark and North avenues yesterday afternoon. A march to Lincoln's statue in the park bearing his name was abandoned because of the unfavorable weather, and the ceremonies were held in the tabernacle instead. Edward R. Litzinger addressed the boys taking as his subject, "The Boy Lincoln."

The Hamilton club was addressed by Edwin A. Munger, former president of the club, who spoke of "Abraham Lincoln," and P. J. O'Conor, publisher of the Greek Star. The latter spoke on "Percival's Funeral Oration and Lincoln's Gettysburg Address."

Father Perez, council No. 1444, Knights of Columbus, observed the anniversary with a banquet and dance at the Hotel Sherman. George E. Gordon, assistant state's attorney, delivering the principal address.

Good Morning!

"The World's a Stage" is beautifullly done. It is recommended to those who like to see a story apparently LIVED UPON the screen. Not once during the entire production do you feel that you are watching puppets obediently obeying the pull of guiding strings. There is not a moment's acting. You are not stilted by elaborate sets. A beautiful simplicity gives character to a story that might have been made hopelessly common if differently presented.

Speaking of the story—there's nothing really new about the plot. It's a triangle affair. Two men love the same woman. She marries the younger and more attractive to do some good later on. The woman and song have unfitted him for the role of perfect husband—which she had picked him to play. The other man, who would have made her happy, stays on the job, changing his part of love to that of family friend—earnestly endeavoring to keep his friendship for both husband and wife to the detriment of happiness and the chaos of his life.

To tell you more of the story would be to spoil the picture for you. Therefore—NO MOH! But—

Will you please note the almost uncanny resemblance of Kenneth Harlan to the late Wallace Reid in some of the scenes, and how much his work resembles that of Mr. Reid? I mean the height of his success? Handled right, there is no reason WHY Mr. Harlan shouldn't be one of the big actors of the day. Mr. Campbell has succeeded in bringing out the best in him. NOW, just let this young chap keep on the upgrade; save him from getting the big head; give him the right type of scenes and production and you'll see! (SEE IF YOU DON'T)

Miss Phillips is a thing of beauty in some of the scenes. Throughout the picture her work is delightfully sincere and convincing. Bruce Mc-

Sororities Quarrel Over Name; On with Dance, Judge Rules

Des Moines, Ia., Feb. 12.—The local Zeta Delta Kappa sorority triumphed here today in the first legal skirmish against the national Zeta Delta Kappa when District Judge Earl Peters ruled that the local sorority could hold its dance tonight which the national sorority had sought to stop by an injunction.

The legal proceedings were precipitated by the national body, which objected to the local sorority using the name Zeta Delta Kappa, which matter will be decided upon later on in court.

Girls of the Zeta Delta Kappa sorority, who filed the suit, alleged that the defendant society was incorporated after the plaintiff organization and adopted a name similar as to cause confusion.

It is further alleged that for the purpose of advertising at night's dance the defendants caused themselves to be known as the Zeta Delta sorority, which, it is alleged, is not its true name.

The factional quarrel started several months ago, when it is alleged, members of one group started blackballing proposed members of the other.

Members of the national society say they filed articles of incorporation on Jan. 11, this year, and that six days later similar action was taken by the defendants. This is denied by the defendant society members, who say they were the first to incorporate.

Many of the girls are former students of St. Joseph's Girls' Academy here.

Methodists Call on Dr. Butler to Disavow Criticism of Dry Law

Resolutions calling on Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, New York, to repudiate his reported utterances in favor of nullifying the eighteenth amendment or to resign from the presidency of the university were adopted unanimously yesterday at their weekly meeting at the Northwestern university building, Evanston and Davis streets.

It is alleged that Mr. Butler, who advocates the nullification of any law, the resolutions read, "is unfit to be a teacher of American youth or the head of a great educational institution."

Society Dons Garb of Louis XVI. Period for Bal Poudre Tonight

In powdered wigs and costumes of the time of Louis XVI., society will gather in the forty days of Lent to-night in the gold ballroom of the Congress at Mardi Gras Bal Poudre, given by the Alliance Française. Debuts and the pretties of the younger married women will take part in a minut and an historic episode representing Benjamin Franklin at the court of Louis XVI. John Alden Carpenter, who wrote the music for the minut, will accompany on the piano, and Jacques Gordon and the other members of the Chicago Symphony orchestra will assist with the music. Mrs. Marion H. Hubert and M. Antonia Barthélémy are co-chairmen of the committee in charge of general arrangements; Mrs. John Alden Carpenter has supervised the decorating of the ballroom and supper room; Mrs. L. Hammill McCormick is chairman of the committee which has sold all the boxes and supper tables; and Evan Evans is chairman of the floor committee.

A lecture will be given tonight in the Orchestra hall on the subject of the Y. W. C. A. by Agnes Maude Royden, the noted English preacher. Her subject will be, "Can We Set the World in Order?" The proceeds of the lecture will be devoted to the world service fund of the national board of the Y. W. C. A.

Another noted English preacher who will be in Chicago soon is the Very Rev. V. G. Jackson, D. D., deacon of Windsor and chaplain to the royal family. He will arrive Saturday. Sunday morning he will preach at St. Christopher's church, after which Mr. and Mrs. Frederick T. West of 68 East Division street will give a luncheon for him to meet the Chicago clergy. Monday the Church club will give a luncheon.

I wonder if any of our kind readers would help me? I need underware, size 36 (summer pajama), shirtwaist 14; collar, size 14½; socks, size 10. It would be thank you for anything received and willing pay postage. E. C.

A patient in a hospital finds life difficult enough without being embarrassed by lack of suitable clothing. Isn't some one help E. C.?

The annual spring hat sale of the White Elephant Rummage shop, 27 East Ohio street, will be held tomorrow.

Announcements have been issued by the literature committee of the Arts club of a dinner for Miss Amy Lowell to be given Saturday evening at 7 o'clock. After dinner Miss Lowell will give a reading of her poems. Miss Harriet Monroe is chairman of the committee.

The drama committee of the club will present a scene from "The Life of Man" by Leonidas Andriev. "The Jewel Merchants," by James Branch Cabell, and "Gentlemen of the Road," by Charles McEvoy, on Friday and Saturday evenings, Feb. 22 and 24.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bentley, son of returning from a honeymoon abroad, will arrive in Chicago on Wednesday evening. Mrs. Bentley, daughter of Frederic F. Norcross of 1301 Astor street, until summer. Mrs. Bentley will have her marriage on Dec. 9, Miss Phoebe Norcross.

Mrs Ethel Wrenn will give an informal tea today at the Norcross residence for Mrs. George Gaylord of 920 North Michigan avenue.

With the arrival of the steamer New York it carried a number of well known Chicagoans, some of whom will take the Mediterranean cruise and others of whom will attend the International Chamber of Commerce to meet in Rome on March 17. Among the passengers are Mr. and Mrs. George M. Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. George D. and Mrs. Mrs. Silas Burdette, Mr. and Mrs. Mrs. Silas Burdette, Miss Katherine Strawn, Col. S. ## CRISSINGER SAYS U. S. IS BEARING "CROSS OF GOLD"

Washington, Feb. 12.—America has too much gold for its welfare, D. B. Cressinger, controller of the currency, stated today in his annual report.

Nearly half of the gold supply of the world is in the United States. Paradoxical as it may seem this concentration is as "dangerous" to the United States as is the lack of the precious metal is to other countries, he said. The total gold supply of the world is estimated at about $3,000,000,000.

Gold Movement's Effect.

Economic stability is based on the free movement of gold, he pointed out. America's monopoly of gold is reacting against the business of the country, Cressinger said, calling attention to the drop in our favorable balance of trade. The report, which is for the year ended Oct. 31, 1922, stated that in this period general industrial conditions were not good, due to unemployment; that unemployment was probably non-existent and all that remains is to put agriculture firmly on its feet.

Cressinger gave the total resources of the U. S. 240 reporting national banks at $29,925,000,000, as of Sept. 15, 1922, an increase of $1,208,119,000 over the previous year.

Urge New Legislation.

He recommended new banking legislation, including the following:

An amendment conferring on national bank examiners, assistants and clerks power of perpetual succession in lieu of the present ninety-nine year limitation.

An amendment making the encumbrance penalties act applicable to national bank examiners, assistants and clerks.

An act authorizing the controller to institute proceedings through the department of Justice against directors for losses sustained by banks through violations of the law.

An act furnishing the offense of publishing false statements derogatory to the condition or standing of any national bank or any other banking institution subject to the supervision of the controller of the currency.

PEKING TO CALL FAKING TUCHUNS INTO CONFERENCE

BY CHARLES DAILEY.
[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright 1923, By The Chicago Tribune.]

PEKING, Feb. 12.—Gen. Wu Pei Fu having gotten into a stale position on the Yangtze, President Chiang Kai Shek is seriously considering commanding all military governments to come to Peking in a final effort to force reunification and disbandment, being informed by Gen. Chang Ying Fang, auditor of the war department, that China has even fewer troops than the Washington conference authorized, although the corrupt tuchuns on fictitious pay rolls draw pay for 1,500,000 soldiers.

Gen. Chang proposes that the soldiers be paid directly from Peking under foreign supervision, but wholly independent of the tuchuns. Should President Li not weaken this summering of the tuchuns would force him to a definite decision.

China is almost bankrupt, but some means probably will be found to carry over the new year settlement this week.

Parliament closed on Saturday for a month for a $12,000,000 loan based on Peking customs, bearing 5 per cent and to be issued at 5%. The Chinese Bankers' association opposes this because previous unpaid loans have been security, while foreigners turn a deaf ear to it. Frederick Stevens, American consortium leader, is leaving at the end of March.

Woman Who Leaped to Death Insane, Is Verdict.

That Mrs. Etta Rauchman, 4537 Prairie avenue, was mentally deranged and committed suicide, was the verdict of a coroner's jury yesterday. She jumped from the third floor of her home Sunday and died a short time later.

She had been dependent over relatives killed in the world war, her husband, Emanuel Rauchman, testified.

The Greatest Fisherman in the World

To guarantee the supply of fish and sea foods in the volume required by the American people, to harvest and market the product quickly and economically over an area continental in extent, was created and developed the great modern service of the Booth Fisheries Company.

This Company today is the world's greatest fisherman.

Its equipment for service involves an investment of more than twenty million dollars.

It does a yearly business exceeding $30,000,000.

It engages the combined activities and resources of what originally were more than 60 corporations and now is one big Company with its 21 subsidiaries.

It employs directly 3,000 men and women, and indirectly employs 25,000 more.

It sends more than a thousand ships out upon the waters of the world, under the Diamond house flag of Booth, to catch and bring into port the hundreds of millions of pounds of fish and sea foods required annually for America and Canada.

It maintains buyers at every pier to which fine quality fishes and sea foods are brought in any quantity by fishermen, and adds their catch to the store brought in by the boats of Booth.

It operates canneries and packing plants in Maine and Canada, in Florida, the Columbia and Fraser River districts, and Alaska.

It ships direct from the wharves and the canneries to mammoth cold storage plants in Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, St. Louis, Seattle, Buffalo and Winnipeg.

All this great organization, with its vast equipment and its range of operation up and down the continent and out into the seas on both sides of America, is devoted to deserving Booth's eminent position as the greatest fisherman in the world.

Booth Fisheries

Company

The Booth Diamond is the known symbol of the world's greatest fisherman. On fish and sea foods it is the mark of Booth service and quality.

MINNIPERG WHEAT IN SHARP UPTURN; ADVANCES 2 1-4c

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

While American grain markets were closed for Lincoln's birthday, Winnipeg and Liverpool were open. Winnipeg wheat closed 2 1-4c higher and Liverpool 1 1/4d higher, the advance failing to surprise the trade as a majority of operators expected a sharp upturn as has been the case for many months when Chicago was closed.

At the outside figure Winnipeg wheat was 2 1-4c over the close on Saturday. Opening prices were 2 1-4c higher, with buyers by exporters who were removing wheat against cash sales and on a keen demand, all handlers receiving buying orders over night. Offerings were light at 161 bushels.

PRODUCE MARKETS

Butter prices showed no change in the leading markets. New York and Philadelphia had a holiday. Cheese prices at primary markets were unchanged to 1/4c higher, while there was no trading in eggs on the Mercantile exchange, but there was a fair demand.

Live hens declined 1c, while spring and summer flocks were 1c higher. Receipts 3 cars and 990 coops.

Potatoes sold fairly at unchanged prices.

Receipts 57 cars, with 113 cars on track.

Estimated hog receipts at 77,000 yesterday equalled the largest day's arrivals in three years, or since January, 1920. Buyers took advantage of the excessive supply and forced values off 25¢/40¢ to lowest point since last November. Closing trade was lowest of the day with 21,000 sets left in the pens and $3,000 expected to day. Pigs also made steady large orders early in the session. Shipping orders, owing to much lower prices at outside points, were smaller than a week ago.
Fancy light hogs sold early in the day at $3.35 but later equalled as good at $3.25. General quality graded as good as any time recently, with light weights plentiful. Day's average price was 30¢/40¢, no lower than a week ago, and 1.25¢ lower than a year ago. Armour's drive of 262 lb butchers cost $7.79 yesterday.
Excessive supplies of cattle worked against the market, most kinds selling 15¢/25¢ lower with top steers at lowest point in over six months for opening day of the week at $10.85. Two loads averaging 1,500 lbs. were sold at that figure. Correspondingly low steers reached the $10 mark, bulk selling at $7.50¢/8.25, according to weight and quality. Veal calves were slightly changed. Day's receipts of cattle at 23,000 were largest in about a month.
Shearing Lambs, $15.25.
Shearing lambs sold to yard traders yesterday at $15.25, being 50¢ above top killing stock at $14.75. Fat lambs slumped 5¢/50¢, top dropping 25¢ below late previous week, although extreme weighty lambs reflected the most discount. Choice 34 lb Colorado lambs

Railroad Bonds

Investors in railroad bonds will be interested in the recent report of the Car Service Division of the American Railway Association, as an indication of the extent to which leading trunk lines are in the market for new equipment. The report shows that the number of freight cars actually installed in service or ordered for future delivery during 1922 exceeded the previous year by 76,117 cars, while locomotives installed or ordered in 1922 exceeded the total for 1921 by 1,442.

Inasmuch as the safety of railroad bonds is undoubtedly strengthened by thorough maintenance of equipment, these favorable statistics are submitted for consideration.

We shall be pleased to furnish information or suggestions at any time to those interested in the purchase of railroad bonds.

To the Bondholders of Midvale Steel and Ordnance Company

Plan in respect to 20-Year 5% Convertible Sinking Fund Gold Bonds, due March 1, 1936, in connection with

Bethlehem-Midvale Purchase

TO THE BONDHOLDERS OF MIDVALE STEEL AND ORDNANCE COMPANY:

Bonds have already been deposited in substantial amount, and you are requested to forward your Bonds promptly to facilitate the consummation of the Plan.

The effect upon your Bonds of the consummation of the Plan may be briefly summarized as follows:

The Bonds Now Are:

Obligations of Midvale Steel and Ordnance Company;

Convertible into Midvale stock at the rate of $500 par value of stock for each $1,000 Bond;

Secured by pledge of approximately 97 1/4% of the stock of Cambria Steel Company, but with no other specific security.

As being clearly in the interest of the Bondholders, the Plan has been endorsed and its acceptance recommended by Guaranty Trust Company of New York, Trustee for the Bonds, and by the representatives of the Bankers who originally offered the issue—Lee, Higginson & Co., Guaranty Company of New York, and The National City Company.

Upon deposit of Bonds in negotiable form, Receipts in bearer or registered form, as you may request, will be delivered to you. Application will be made to list these Receipts on the New York Stock Exchange. When the Plan is consummated your Bonds will be returned, bearing the guaranty of Bethlehem Steel Corporation. All expenses in connection with deposit of Bonds and their return to holders will be borne by the undersigned.

MIDVALE STEEL AND ORDNANCE COMPANY

Without cost to you, Bonds will be automatically insured against all risks while in transit, provided they are enclosed in a strong envelope, sealed with wax in the presence of two witnesses (who in case of loss must be prepared to certify as to the amount and serial numbers of the Bonds), and dispatched by registered mail addressed to the Depository or its nearest agent.

UNITED STATES REALTY AND IMPROVEMENT.

W. W. R.—The United States Realty and Improvement company is issuing $4,000,000 of 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock, and will presently have outstanding $8,081,400 of an authorized issue of $10,000,000. This is followed by $16,280,000 outstanding common stock (having a par value of about $15,000,000 at present) and $1,000,000 of 6 per cent stock dividend late in December. Net profits for 1922, after federal taxes, were $4,910,677, equivalent after preferred dividends to $3.51 a share on 47,715 shares of common stock outstanding at the close of that year.

Preferred Stock Retired.

The earnings statement, however, does not entirely measure the company's achievement last year. The $1,500,000 preferred stock issue was retired at the beginning of 1922. Dividends paid exceeded those of 1921 by $123,000. The 10 per cent stock dividend capitalized $2,787,72 of surplus. Nevertheless the company's surplus now stands at $7,885,320, an increase of $525,775 over the preceding year.

Current assets show an increase of $2,586,851, but current liabilities declined $678,208. Total assets and liabilities increased $1,903,636. The balance sheet, with comparisons, follows:

	Dec. 31, '22	Dec. 31, '21

Yellow Cab Profit	$ 1,772,722

The Chicago Yellow Cab company, which operates the largest taxi service, issued its first public annual report. Net profits for 1922, after all charges and federal taxes, were $1,772,722, equivalent to $8.86 a share on the 200,000 shares of stock outstanding. After paying dividends of $1,772,722, there was added to surplus $1,903,636. The total debt is $194,000, and the assessed valuation for taxation is $3,009,770. These bonds are a conservative investment suitable for savings. They are exempt from all federal income tax.

M. G.: The Elmira and Williamsport railroad first extended to 1920 are secured by a first lien on 73 miles of road. There are $963,000 outstanding. They are guaranteed principal and interest by the Northern Central Railway company, which leased the property for 99 years from 1882. The lease has been assumed by the Pennsylvania railroad. These bonds are a conservative investment.

R. L.: The Washington Water Power company collateral is of 1922 are secured by a mortgage on the entire property. There are only $325,000 outstanding at present. $1,000,000 having been exchanged for the company's first, maturing in 1923. They underlie the latter, which provide for their retirement. They are a sound investment.

FINANCIAL NOTES

Twenty-five thousand new accounts were opened with the postal saving system during January, but 10,000 accounts were closed, leaving a net gain of 5,000 deposits, which was announced yesterday by the Postmaster General. The Bank of America, which was incorporated February 1, 1922, reported a net loss of $670,000 as compared with Jan. 1. Total deposits Feb. 1 were $181,620,000.

The fifth of 10 cents a share on all classes of north Louisiana and Arkansas crude oil was posted yesterday by the Standard Oil Company of Louisiana, raising the price of top grades of Caddo, Red River, Bayou, and Lake oil to $2.50 a barrel. The previous day saw the price of 10 cents a barrel raised to $2.50. Dec. 30, $2.10; Crittenden, $1.75; and Smackover, $1.25.

Directors of the Canadian Pacific railroad declared a 2 per cent dividend on preferred stock for the half year, which ended Dec. 31 last, and a 2½ per cent dividend on common stock for the quarter ending March 31. The same date, the dividends are payable on March 31 to stockholders of record March 1.

A petition asking leave to intervene upon the part of 5,000 stockholders of the Chicago clearing house.

CORPORATION EARNINGS

Montana corporation in its suit against the American Discount corporation, the First People's Trust, and William R. Allin, formerly Lieutenant Governor of Montana, was filed in the U.S. District Court yesterday. The Bank of America alleges that the respondents through conspiracy and fraud have obtained a large part of the Boston Montana stock and notes. About $3,000,000 is said to be involved.

Price movements last week in the whole commodity markets were again definitely upward. $66 of the 91 changes that appeared in the 339 corporations recorded by the New York Stock Exchange, as against 23 recessions. In contrast with the previous week's tendency, a marked widening of the margin of increase in bank clearings occurred last week, an aggregate of $6,918,700, or 10 per cent, in the United States. This total is 29.5 per cent larger than the amount a year ago.

The Irving State Savings bank, at Sherman and Irving Park boulevard, has opened for business with a capital and surplus of $220,000. The new bank, which marks another step in north side business development, is the 10th member of the Chicago clearing house.

Bryn Mawr State Bank to Open on South Side

SHIP BILL VOTE ON

British Funding May Pass To

William Hard's third article with the peril of tax securities will be found in this section.

BY GRAFTON WILSON

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—Precedence was given by the debt funding bill over the side measure in the senate, allowing a conference of leaders with President Harding.

Passage of the debt bill by tomorrow night, after administration will allow no interference with the shipping bill.

Instead of being temporary, as has been the case whenever other bills have been ahead, the shipping bill has its preferred position on the calendar.

An objection by Senator K. S. (Utah) prevented a temporary side of the bill, and as a result Senator Jones (Rep., Wash.), in charge of the ship subsidy, moved that the senate pro-consideration of the debt bill. Result of this procedure is necessary to obtain a majority to pass it.

A roll call to get the shipping bill passed was adjourned.

SENATOR KING TO FILE

Opponents of ship subsidies agreed for Senator King to file with a two-day speech as soon as it comes up again.

King makes no secret of his intention against it.

If the bill comes to a vote, it will probably be a majority.

The fate of the bill will depend upon the action of those who propose to against it.

Debate on the debt funding today made it evident that it had passed by an overwhelming

In the debate explanation

with Great Britain by Senator McCumber (Rep., Iowa), chairman of the finance committee, was made by Senator Smoot (Rep., Utah), member of the funding committee.

WON'T IMITATE RUSSIA

"We could have insisted on our interest, but we have reached a settlement," McCumber declared.

"We demanded the pound of flesh which would have been a demand for war and a war invasion to collect it."

Senator McCumber preferred that the United States would borrow money at 3 per cent for years and refund it below the rate charged Germany.

Following Senator McCumber's prediction that no other debtor nations would as that reached

Britain.

BORAH RAISES OBJECTION

Senator Borah (Rep., Idaho) previously indicated his opposition to the British loan, and he felt that the six-year agreement would merely postpone difficulties in Europe and that the United States would be willing to go so far as to allow all war debts to be settled and stabilize Europe and to purchase in American.

"If the European nations to build vast armaments," Borah said. "It is useless to make debt settlements."

Interpreting Senator Borah's

as an argument for an international conference, Senator Smoot said:

WOULD ASK CANADA

"If such a conference were held, Canada will be asked to contribute to the United States to pay debts and the second the guarantee against Germany."

After Senator Caraway

had made any over

saying in debt, Senator work.

"The French premier

when we may expect

France. He has said the debts will be paid when the money from Germany."

"The French government

the American company that we have received

France."
